Growth Mindset Class Motto

Create a Class Motto with your students to help them commit to growth-minded choices.

1. Explain to students that part of growing our intelligence and being responsible is to make commitments (promises to ourselves) and stick to them.
2. Ask students to think if they have ever made a promise to themselves. Have them think silently. Then provide them with this sentence frame:
   a. Once I promised myself that __________. I did this because __________.
3. Ask students to share with an elbow partner. Use random response cards or wooden sticks to elicit examples from the class.
4. Explain that today, we will write some statements that they will commit to as a class.
5. Today’s statements, though, will be to take actions that help us grow, bounce back from mistakes (be resilient), and take on challenges.
6. Remember our lessons on the Growth Mindset? Each of us knew that we had some areas where we were more growth minded and some more fixed (like wanting challenges vs. how it felt to get feedback/corrected)
7. Today, we will decide how we want to act in the classroom when we are learning. We can write a pledge to say how we will respond when things get tough. This way we learn to respond in a growth mindset more often.
8. Let’s use these frames:
   a. When we feel challenged _____ because____.
   b. If something gets in our way, we will ___ because___.
   c. When it’s time to practice ______.
   d. If someone corrects us we ____ because___.
   e. When others are successful ____.
9. Let’s post these on the wall and that will help us make more growth minded choices and grow our abilities!
